

VIP GOLF SCHOOLS • BIENVILLE PLANTATION • LAS VEGAS DINING

STRATOS[®]

JOURNEY BEYOND FIRST CLASS

OCTOBER 2007

THE SPORTING LIFE

New Communities
for Outdoor Enthusiasts

COMPLIMENTARY Take
This Issue
With You
COPY

Fashionable Frames ▲

Step into the showroom of Customeyes in Manhattan's Upper East Side, and you may feel like you've gone back in time to the lavish days of F. Scott Fitzgerald and The Great Gatsby. Antique armoires showcase vintage eyewear while the sounds of jazz create a soothing ambiance. Here, certified optician Nader Zadi offers an amazing collection of antique frames and components, with an emphasis on frames produced between 1900 and the 1940s. Made of white and yellow gold, these collector frames provide the distinguished look sought by executives, celebrities and other clients. Through private, one-on-one consultations, Zadi helps them choose frames and bridges to create a custom look that complements their face while meeting their vision needs. After the frames are selected, Zadi uses old-world techniques to create a museum-quality masterpiece. Frames range from $750 to $5,000, while lenses range from $300 to $1,000. (212) 249-5609. www.rareframes.com.

High Performance ▶

Legendary JBL sound quality is yours to enjoy anywhere with the JBL Reference 510 noise-canceling headphones. The JBL Reference 510 headphones combine superb performance with comfort and style, and their noise-canceling feature lets you listen to your favorite music without the distraction of all the commotion around you. The JBL Reference 510 features a compact on-ear design with an in-line controller that, when activated, eliminates up to 70 percent of ambient noise. The headphones are great for use on your jet and fold for convenient storage. Featuring advanced JBL transducers, the Reference 510 delivers outstanding fidelity, with distortion-free bass, a rich midrange and clear highs. $150. www.jbl.com.

Made-to-Order Beds ▼

Where would you go for a round, suede bed that's 100 inches in diameter? Savior Beds, of course. The UK-based company, which created the $50,000 bed for a 1970s-style room, works closely with clients and designers to create exactly what they desire. Every bed is made to order, and the sky is truly the limit — as evidenced by the bed recently made from an airplane wing. The wing was supplied by a client and turned into a headboard and side tables. According to Savior Beds, its basic king retails for $17,500. Then tack on $5,000 to $15,000 for upholstering the base, adding an upholstered headboard, and commissioning special feet. Actual pricing depends upon the fabrics and legs chosen, such as the Gucci pony hide used on one $33,000 bed or the hand-carved and gold-gilded legs on another $35,000 bed.

One recent Savior creation was made from a client's airplane wing.

Savior Beds showrooms are located in New York, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C. www.saviorbeds.co.uk.

Golden Warmth ▶

The perfect solution to October's chills, a necklace from LeViev is a heart-warming couture piece crafted from 214.91 carats of diamonds. An achievement in metalwork, the necklace is worn around the neck or even as a bracelet. The diamonds form whimsical, abstract shapes. Request a catalog. At LeViev, London or by phone. (877) 453-8438. www.leviev.com.

Customeyes by Nader Zadi Profile

STRATOS
(Private Jet Magazine)
October, 2007

